

I have heard that you are considering a national telephone privacy standard that would override Indiana's law. I ask you to enact nothing that would dilute the privacy I have in Indiana. I used to get annoying, time-wasting calls every day. Now, weeks can go by without getting one. This has added time back to my life. The 'existing customer' concept will be abused. You know that. If you weaken Indiana's law, you will be doing a disservice to society and selling out to big corporations that want to annoy people. Please don't do this.

Thanks,

Ryan Davis
